DESCRIPTION

- 7a. Architectural style: Bungalow7b. Briefly describe the present physical description of the site or structure and describe any major alterations from its original condition:

Legal: Van Deever & Merritt Tct, Lot 6 This interesting version of the bungalow style features a low, cross gable roof with wide eaves and exposed rafter ends. The ridge of the front-facing gable is peaked, giving this one story house an oriental flair. Other details include latticework vents in the gable ends, wooden shingle siding in the gable ends and clapboard siding on the rest of the house, and an interior brick chimney. A recessed porch under the front gable originally had two tapered posts on high piers as roof supports. The piers and a unique stepped wall across the front of the porch appear to be made of rock faced concrete blocks in unusual sizes. The porch has been enclosed by side hinged windows and a door. Room additions on the right side of this house are covered by three small gable roofs.
