The dominant feature of this one story house is an open front porch that extends across the facade. The porch is inset under the house roof and features four Tuscan columns on short square wooden piers as roof supports. These columns suggest the Neoclassic style for this house. The porch has a low wooden railing. The home has a medium, cross hipped roof with a blind hipped dormer with a vent facing the street. Other details include a weathervane on the dormer, a brick chimney, clapboard siding, and double hung windows. The home is asymmetrical and "L" shaped.
